OVERVIEW: WOMEN’S DAY CELEBRATION PROGRAMME

International Women’s Day stands as a global reminder to celebrate the resilience, achievements, and invaluable contributions of women across all spheres of life. Embracing this spirit, the Alumni Association – SETU of D.B.M.S. College of Education organized a special Women’s Day Celebration Programme on 7th March 2026, dedicated to honoring the institution’s support staff members, affectionately addressed as the “Didis.” Themed “Honouring Our Very Own Didis – The Backbone of Our College!”, the programme went beyond a symbolic celebration to serve as a heartfelt expression of gratitude. The event acknowledged the tireless, behind-the-scenes efforts of these women who ensure cleanliness, discipline, hospitality, and seamless daily operations — contributions that, though rarely spotlighted, form the very foundation of the college environment. The venue was adorned with floral arrangements, warm-toned décor, and a thoughtfully designed banner portraying women in diverse roles, creating an atmosphere of respect, warmth, and positivity.

The core objective of the initiative was to shift attention toward the dignity of labour and the principle of inclusiveness within educational spaces. While teachers and administrators shape academics, it is the consistent dedication of non-teaching staff that sustains the institution’s functionality. Recognizing this, Alumni Association – SETU envisioned International Women’s Day as the ideal platform to bring their silent service into the light. The programme aimed not only to felicitate the Didis but also to instill in students a deeper sense of empathy, equality, and appreciation for every role that contributes to collective success. It reflected the association's commitment to human values and to strengthening the emotional fabric of the college community by bridging gaps between different stakeholders.

The celebration saw wholehearted participation from all sections of the institution. Management members, Principal, Vice Principal, faculty, alumni, current students, staff, and the Didis themselves came together, making it a truly inclusive gathering. The Alumni Association – SETU spearheaded the event with meticulous planning — from multiple coordination meetings and delegation of responsibilities to decoration, stage management, and felicitation arrangements. The Multipurpose Hall was transformed with thematic décor and a prominent banner that captured the essence of the day. The programme flowed through a warm welcome address, insightful speeches by alumni highlighting the significance of the Didis' contributions, and an emotional felicitation ceremony where each Didi was honored individually. Interactive moments between students, alumni, and staff added a personal, touching dimension to the celebration.

The outcomes of the programme were both tangible and deeply emotional. The Didis expressed overwhelming joy and felt genuinely valued for their years of service, many for the first time receiving public appreciation within the institution. For students and participants, the event became a living lesson in gratitude and respect, reinforcing that no work is small and every contribution matters. The programme fostered stronger emotional bonding among alumni, faculty, management, and students, while also reaffirming the alumni's active connection with their alma mater. More than a one-day event, it created a ripple of positivity, inclusiveness, and motivation across the campus. The celebration concluded as a memorable testament to how acknowledgment and dignity can uplift spirits, strengthen communities, and embody the true meaning of International Women's Day.
